ScreenShooter is a screen recording program which works for your primary display. Simply drag the program window to the top of your screen and start recording. When you are done, the recording file will be saved in your profile directory. One of the best features of Windows 7 is the ability to have the Home page of the start menu be a tile that is easy to access. This is great for the beginning user, as they can easily point and click their way to their desired page. Unfortunately, when you're using Windows 7 with multiple monitors, it can be difficult to ensure that you have the right page up on the right monitor. To combat this problem, I created JumpPad, a small, free utility that will enable you to easily pin the page to the correct monitor. JumpPad Features: JumpPad enables you to easily pin the Home page of the start menu to a specific monitor. JumpPad doesn't rely on 3rd party application and will work perfectly for any version of Windows 7 that you are running. JumpPad is free to use, and has no ads, pop-ups or nag screens. JumpPad currently works with Windows 7 x64, Windows 8 and Windows 8.1. JumpPad can be launched by any of the following from the Windows 7 taskbar, and it will launch on the correct monitor: My Desktop (if the start menu is not in tile form, you can right-click My desktop and select Pin to Screen) JumpPad – (the application icon) JumpPad – (the service icon) JumpPad is small, lightweight, and easy to use. JumpPad has two ways to launch. By default, the JumpPad application will launch by itself. To have JumpPad launch when you double-click the JumpPad – (the application icon) on the Windows 7 taskbar, follow the instructions below: From the Windows 7 taskbar, right-click on the JumpPad – (the application icon) Select Properties Select the Compatibility tab Select the Run this program as an administrator check box Click the OK button Double-click JumpPad – (the application icon) on the Windows 7 taskbar. JumpPad will launch and will attempt to pin the home page to the correct monitor. If you ever need to close JumpPad, just press the ESC key.
