Temporary files are created on a regular basis during software installations. Since they take up disk space, they should better be cleaned up after use. Otherwise, they will continue to slow down the PC, decreasing its performance. Fortunately, CleanTempShutdown allows you to quickly remove all the temporary files from the system, making the hard drive run at the optimal performance. More efficient Windows 10 booting The program, which is both free to use and very easy to use, has gained popularity and is often
