Q: What are the equivalent commands to subprocess.check_output in Windows? I have the following script in Linux that is calling an external application to generate an output file: subprocess.check_output(grep ^SOME_CONSTANT /path/to/my/output.txt > my_output.txt) How can I achieve the same thing on Windows? A: This should do the job. import subprocess subprocess.call(['C:\\path\\to\\my\\output.txt', '>>', 'my_output.txt'], shell=True) Q: Cannot start and view web apps on sharepoint 2013 server I have recently installed SharePoint 2013 and I am experiencing issues with my web apps. The app shows up on the root level and if I try to go into it it shows an error message saying that it cannot view it on SharePoint. I have looked up similar questions and the answers have been provided (including this one) but I do not understand them. I have tried to use the following commands but I cannot view the web apps on the SharePoint server. stsadm -o add -url -hidden I have also tried this one: stsadm -o addwebapplication -url -force Could you please help me out and let me know what could be wrong? A: Have you looked at the following: Update: Try adding the -hidden parameter to the addwebapplication command (as is mentioned in the link above).
